"If and When"

Charles McLaughlin, Wellsville carpenter, was endorsed for the position of county commissioners' clerk by the Columbiana county Democratic executive committee at a meeting last night in Columbiana.

McLaughlin was defeated by T. V. Yates of Salem, Republican, for the office of clerk of common pleas court at the November election.

Acceptable to Board

McLaughlin had previously been recommended by the Democratic patronage committee for the county and it was announced at last night's meeting, the appointment will be acceptable to the Democratic county commissioners, A. I. Getz, Frank Fisher and Conrad Berg.

The new appointee is to be formally elected to the position at the first meeting of the commissioners in January. He will succeed L. H. Johnson.

Other recommendations of the executive committee were announced as follows:

Lynn Roberts of East Liverpool as chief deputy to County Recorder-elect Jess Calhoun of Wellsville.

Miss Margaret Sanderbeck of East Palestine, clerk in the recorder's office.

A. C. Hively of Salem, former beer inspector, for the position of inspector for the Ohio liquor commission.

Robert M. Patterson of Lisbon, Columbiana county relief director, "when, and if, such a change is made in the relief setup in the county."

State Recommendations

The committee approved the recommendations of James Berry of Columbus as chief mine inspector; T. W. Neff of Ravenna as district highway engineer for district No. 4; and Frank Votaw of Columbus as registrar of vehicles.

The executive committee's action followed recommendations by the party's patronage committee including R. John Taylor of Salem, C. N. Brannan of Wellsville, Conrad Berg of Leetonia, John W. Moore of East Liverpool and W. O. Wallace of Columbiana.

The committee studied the qualifications of more than 200 applicants.

Magda Lupescu, red-headed weakness of King Carol, is threatening to overthrow his rule in Marie Antoinette fashion. She has become a storm center in Roumania, with former supporters of Carol turning against him because of his refusal to stick to his promise of paying her off. #### "Good Lady Of State St.," Story Of Christmas Spirit

Fathers, Mothers and Children Extend Thanks To Unknown Benefactor of Four Years

"The Good Lady of East State Street."

This is the title of a real Christmas story, one of those stories—true stories—that comes to light now and then about Christmas time and touches the heart strings; that is apt to pull one's thoughts away from the bargain counters; a story that indeed reveals the true spirit of Christmas.

A woman came into the office of The News, in behalf of herself and her family, as well as a number of other families, she wanted to thank someone—she didn't know the name, and this is what she wrote:

"We, the undersigned, want to take this way to thank the good lady of East State Street for the goodness and kindness that she has shown to us for the last four years.

"We have never been able to learn her name, but we want to thank her for the coal, shoes and groceries which she sent us this week. We are very grateful for her kindness.

"Fathers, Mothers and Children."

Whoever you are, "Good Lady of State Street," your kindness indeed is appreciated.

Try Octopus Meat As Food Delicacy

CLEVELAND, Dec. 21.—Like octopus meat?

'Tis a delicacy, especially when cooked in a frying pan with tomato sauce, according to Frank Visconti, operator of a fish store.

Visconti imported one of the tentacled monsters and with it decorated the front of his establishment. He bought it particularly for his Italian patrons, he said.

It's quite a yuletide treat—take Visconti's word for it!

SEVEN KILLED AS GIANT AIR LINER CRASHES

Falls During Desert Thunder Storm On Way To Batavia

THREE PASSENGERS.
CREW FOUND DEAD

Ship Was Seeking Fresh Laurels After Austrian Flight

(By Associated Press)

BAGHDAD, Iraq, Dec. 21.—The giant American-built airplane "Univer" pride of the Royal Dutch air line, was found wrecked and burned today, its seven occupants killed.

The plane crashed during a desert thunderstorm yesterday, ten miles south of Rutba Wells, Iraq.

Scouting planes of the British Royal air force, who had searched for the liner since early yesterday, found the charred wreckage.

Fresh from triumphs in the England to Melbourne air derby, the liner, popularly known as "The Flying Hotel," was seeking new laurels in a speed flight from Amsterdam to Batavia, Java, when disaster overtook it.

Three Passengers Abroad

The victims were three passengers and four members of the crew. They were:

Professor Walch of Batavia university; M. Beretti, director of Aneta, official news agency of the Dutch East Indies; and M. Kort, a business man. M. Boekman, commander and chief pilot; Second Pilot Van Steenberghe; H. A. Walewyn, engineer; and wireless operator, C. Van Zadelhoff.

Although the exact cause of the tragedy was not known, air officials here expressed belief it had been struck by lightning. The last radio message from the doomed craft, received early yesterday, said it was in difficulty during a storm near Rutba Wells and asked its position.

More than a score of British planes and armored cars had been pressed into a hunt for the liner.

Won Melbourne Derby

Exactly one month ago today 50.

The class was prepared by Rev. Dayton Wright, rector of the parish, who will present the confirmations to the bishop.

Chicken Dinner For County Prisoners

Prisoners at the county jail on Christmas will be served roast chicken, hot biscuit, and dressing.

It was announced today by Sheriff Frank Ballantine. The noon meal will be similar to that served Thanksgiving to those in custody of the sheriff.

Something Missing

Paul suddenly discovered he needed a wedding suit—a ring—a license—a shave—a haircut.

First he drove to Fort Smith, 80 miles away. Dashing from store to store, he got everything but the license. He drove up to the courthouse at Ozark just as the clerk was closing the office. He got the license.

Always Late

Leaving after the ceremony for a honeymoon trip to Gulfport, Miss., where they will meet big brother, "Dizzy" and his wife, they arrived in Little Rock three hours later.

Suddenly Paul realized he hadn't had any supper. So they stopped over for a wedding meal.

As calm as her husband, the bride ate her dinner while he explained just how this all came about.

"Aw, I'd been seeing her around ever since she was a skinny little girl going barefoot." Eventually he confessed that it was somewhat of a "whirlwind" courtship over the last two months that settled the matter.

Bank Makes Release

Blind Man Rejoices Over Friend's Escape From Fire

Clifford Goodrich Learns Story of Evangelist Jeffrey's Good Fortune At Lansing

Clifford G. Goodrich of North Ellsworth ave., piano tuner who has been blind all his life, today learned through a newspaper clipping of the miraculous escape of Walter Jeffrey, blind evangelist, from the tragic Hotel Kerns blaze in Lansing, Mich., recently, and rejoiced that his friend was safe.

Jeffrey, it is recalled, was alone in a hotel room. He was in Lansing to attend a Salvation Army convention.

The noise of the fire awakened him. Unable to get out by the usual avenues, he took to the window of his room, without the least idea of what was underneath. His feet touched a ledge about four feet under the window. He hung from this and then let go.

But he dropped only a couple of feet and alighted on a roof.

Goodrich was a schoolmate of Jeffrey's at Lansing, Mich., and met him again last summer for the first time in 30 years. They had formerly sung in a quartet together and blended their voices once more at the convention for the blind which Jeffrey and Goodrich were attending.

Girl Was Ready At 5 But She Forgot That She Was Marrying One of the Dean Boys

(By Associated Press)

RUSSELLVILLE, Ark., Dec. 21.—Little brother "Daffy" Dean, the calm and collected bridegroom who kept his bride waiting three hours, is honeymooning today toward a meeting with his brother "Dizzy."

"A real Christmas surprise, that's me," chortled "Daffy."

Nervous bridegroom? Not a bit of it. One of the Dean brothers, pitching pair extraordinary, just got married and took it in stride.

Sometime yesterday, the question was settled with Miss Dorothy Sandusky, local beauty prize winner and daughter of J. S. Sandusky, Russellville, Ark., lumberman.

The wedding was arranged for 5 o'clock. The bride was ready. But she hadn't taken into consideration that she was marrying one of the Dean boys.

Meanwhile, the wedding hour and three more hours passed. Was the bride nervous? "He'll be here," she said.

Then the bridegroom drove up to the Sandusky residence. Hurdled the wedding party was gathered and the ceremony begun.

Just as the minister reached the "will thou" section, Brother "Daffy" leaned casually over the bride and planted a resounding kiss on her cheek.

Always Late

Leaving after the ceremony for a honeymoon trip to Gulfport, Miss., where they will meet big brother, "Dizzy" and his wife, they arrived in Little Rock three hours later.

Suddenly Paul realized he hadn't had any supper. So they stopped over for a wedding meal.

Postoffice Open All Day Saturday

In order to expedite the movement of mail prior to Christmas day, all departments and windows of the postoffice will remain open from 7 a. m. to 6 p. m. Saturday. Postmaster Earl Beardmore announced today.

Ordinarily the postoffice closes at 1 p. m. Saturday.

Enforcement On New Year's Eve Is "Purely Local"

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 21.—The lid will be off New Year's eve.

The department of liquor control today passed a motion to suspend the closing hour regulation in recognition of "the time-honored custom upon the part of many people to celebrate the advent of the new year."

The curfew regulation requires night-clubs to stop serving liquor at 2:30 a. m., and holders of permits to sell liquor by-the-glass at 1 a. m.

With the motion the board put the question of closing on New Year's eve squarely up to local authorities, declaring in a statement, "it is the sentiment of this board that local enforcement officers xxx should solely govern on the morning of Jan. 1, 1935, and the action can in no wise be interpreted as interfering with local laws, ordinances, and enforcement thereof."

Toledo Armory Hit By $125,000 Fire

(By Associated Press)

TOLEDO, Dec. 21.—A spectacular fire, studied with the explosion of small arms ammunition, destroyed the armory housing headquarters of the 148th infantry here early today.

Captain William H. Crawford, supply officer of the regiment, estimated the loss of equipment stored in the structure at $100,000; damage to the building $25,000.

The military equipment consisted of 1,300 rifles; 1,000 pistols; three field pieces and 1,500 uniforms besides a large quantity of small arms ammunition, some of which exploded.

Fire Chief Fred Myers expressed the opinion that the blaze started from a cigaret discarded last night during a wrestling show.

It had gained considerable headway before fire fighters were summoned.

Naval and Marine corps reserves units also had quarters in the building. Only a small amount of equipment was saved.

Applications For Licenses Received

Blank applications for vendors license have been received at the office of County Auditor John H. Irwin at Lisbon, but no stock licenses has been delivered. During the week, a score or more of applications have been filed with either the auditor or County Treasurer John C. Litty.

While application blanks can now be "filled in," applicants will not receive a license from the auditor's office until the stock has been received from Columbus. The license fee is retained in Columbiana county.

2 County Relief Projects Approved

The State Relief commission today approved 25 FERA projects including one in Columbiana county of $923 to repair heating systems in the Chestnut Hill school at Lisbon.

Federal cash grants totaling $43,159 have been turned over to six counties to liquidate relief bills of previous months. Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson revealed today, Columbiana county was given $3,282 for August direct relief bills.

Names Taken From Jury Wheel Today

Jury Commissioners Charles F. Wilson, of Salem, and Lee C. Cooper, of East Liverpool, in the presence of Judge W. F. Lones and Sheriff Frank Ballantine, today drew 95 names from the jury wheel for the January term of court.

The first 20 drawn will serve as grand jurors who will go in session Jan. 7. The other 75, drawn in blocks of 25, will serve a period of three weeks each.

"In The Pink"

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Dec. 21.—See where the doctors say "President Roosevelt is in great physical shape and ready to face Congress on Jan. 3."

Well, that being the case from one training camp, I would like to report from the other training camp.

I have examined Congress and they are in great shape physically; (I said physically), mentally the boys are befuddled, but the are in the "pink." (That's what the fellows with the dough are afraid of—there is too many of 'em in the "pink.")

Remember the date, and tune in on the biggest show on earth, bar none.

Yours,
Will Rogers

DIVIDED RESPONSIBILITY

Japan's privy council has voted to denounce the Washington naval limitation treaty. The action is formal; Japan's intention has been known for many weeks.

It is important, however, because it closes the door on revision of the treaty. During the conversations among the United States, Great Britain and Japan, revision was a possibility, even though a remote one.

If there is to be naval limitation in the future, certain concessions will have to be made which now are called impossible. Japan, by repudiating the Washington treaty, has reopened the whole difficult issue of naval defense in the Pacific ocean. It has gained the right to increase the size of its navy, but has lost the security which a treaty can guarantee.

In consequence, the United States threatens to increase its navy's size sufficiently to maintain an approximation of the 5-3 ratio established by the Washington treaty. Great Britain threatens to do likewise. Japan, which has abrogated the treaty to get equality, has no assurance of getting it, hence the assumption that there will be a naval race.

Naturally, Americans blame the Japanese for what has happened. Japanese, of course, blame Americans. The British probably blame both, even though Great Britain has tended toward the United States in its official sympathies. May it not be obvious when the problem can be viewed in retrospect that all three nations were responsible for termination of the Washington treaty? In considering 25 years from now the reasons for its abrogation what can any of the three naval powers point to with pride?

Perhaps the assumption of a naval race is made too easily. Japanese taxpayers are no different from their brethren in other countries. Certainly there will be no enthusiasm in the United States or Great Britain over the prospect of larger naval expenditures. Responsibility for the failure of diplomats to avoid a naval race must be divided among all three naval powers. Probably a few years of swollen expenditures will be enough to convince Americans, British and Japanese that the game they have started isn't worth the candle.

EUGENE R. BLACK

Among the things which wreck the well laid plans of mice and men is death. Eugene R. Black, governor of the sixth federal reserve district and former governor of the federal reserve board, was an important personality in the Roosevelt administration. His unexpected death creates an unforeseen problem.

Mr. Black's function was to sell President Roosevelt's banking and general financial programs to bankers. He had been working hard at this obviously important task. Because of his reputation as a conservative banker who had been over to the new deal by his intimate contact with it, he was suited admirably for the job. It will be difficult, perhaps impossible, to replace him.

The death of such men is always a remote possibility until it has happened. For a brief interval then there is likely to be apprehension over the possibility that a succession of deaths might throw orderliness into confusion. Fortunately, apprehension usually is a passing mood. In the United States, where more young men occupy places of prominence than in any other nation, death's ravages have been anticipated with reassuring adequacy by preparation of substitutes who, with a little training, soon can make themselves the "irreplaceable" leaders of their time.

NOT SO DEAD

Voting statistics on the congressional election tell more clearly the story to which some stubborn Republicans insist on sticking; namely, that the G. O. P. elephant is far from dead.

Democrats polled 17,440,438 votes—56.32 per cent of the total. Republicans polled 13,512,749 votes—43.69 per cent of the total. Democrats polled 3,927,688 more votes than Republicans in this year's congressional elections. Two years ago, in the presidential election, the Democratic margin was 4,671,324.

Democrats lost 0.5 per cent of their 1932 votes in 12 midwestern states. In 13 southern states they lost 1.1 per cent of their votes. In eastern and western states, however, they gained 2.4 per cent and 4.2 per cent, respectively. As has been pointed out before, the Republican party's condition is not serious according to the number of votes cast for its candidates, however serious it may be when judged by failure of Republican candidates to win more offices.

THE STARS SAY

The astral influences bearing rule on the affairs of this day point to good news as well as an opportunity for increasing the fortune, enhancing the position and prestige. It is a favorable time for reaching out for the friendly support and cooperation of those in important places and authority.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of splendid opportunities for increasing the fortunes through solid business propositions. Through the friendly recognition and support of those in substantial and influential position.

A child born on this day should be capable, versatile and ambitious and should attain high ambitions and good standing in life.

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—Thoughts while strolling: No place a musician can be so conspicuous as at an organ console. They pin the stories on Tailulah Bankhead they used to pin on Dorothy Parker. What's become of Hope Williams? No actress can make me choke up like Pauline Lord.

Capeule awk: In Persia they have pet snakes for kitchens. A resemblance between Nancy Carroll and Hope Hampton. The self-serve cafes packed to the rails. Few know Clacie Loftus as Clacie anymore. Wonder if I pronounce Nunnally Johnson's first name correctly. The extra urbane Anthony Drekel.

Gertrude Stein stuttered when young. Which may explain everything but that goshawful cap. Never met a person who knew Little Eva's last name or what the D. stands for in John D. Rockefeller. Sometimes the keenest men have a drowsy look—Merlin Aylesworth, Clarence Darrow and Percy Hammond.

One word description of Herbert Swope—gyroscopic. George Jean Nahan calls critics who go in for "As someone has aptly remarked," left handed glory grabbers. The Social Register this year has about laughed itself into oblivion. Donald Ogden Stewart seems to be the card of Hollywood.

The most voluminous writer of the weeklies: Lois Long. And maintains a high batting average. They say Somerset Maugham won't do any more short stories for less than $7,000. And why not? Sid Solomon always looks at though he had just been holy-stoned—like a Baltimore stoop!

Head waiters, once receiving an occasional $100 bill and scarcely ever less than a ten dollar tip, are now seldom handed more than $5, and these are not so plentiful. Many had country homes and two actually motored to their jobs in chauffeured cars. Most were supplied with market tips that made them sizeable sums on the side. That also has vanished, and there were margin speculators who lost heavily in the stock crash. One of the barometers of good times is the uptake in their gratuities. It is not yet in evidence.

Harry K. Thaw and the sensational Death Valley Scotty, ballyhooing a gold mine, are reputed to have bestowed the largest single tips in the memory of New York's maitres de hotel. Thaw's was said to have been $500 for the overlord of the silken rope at Martin's. And Scotty's was $200 to the head waiter at the old Waldorf.

An antiquarian tells me that, while Andrew Carnegie seldom dined in public, when he did his pourbois was invariably a half dollar. Lord Northcliffe on a visit to New York, confused temporarily by American coinage, left a $20 gold piece at his plate after breakfasting alone. The waiter, sensing a mistake, informed the publisher, who not only requested him to keep it, but took him to England as part of his entourage. And when too old for service, was pensioned. Harry Lauder, despite his widely heralded Scotch thrift, was a generous tipper.

Isaac Marcossen, the roaming magazine writer, likely knows more world notables than any journalist of his time. He has interviewed seven kings, four queens, scads of lesser royalty, and every industrial ruler from the Saar to the Montana copper fields. He was, I believe, the first American writer to interview Mussolini and talked to Hitler back in his Munich house painting days. Marcossen, a fashion plate with rufous hair and thick lips, has a trick of making others talk by talking little himself and being a rap listener. He has secured an autographed picture of every person interviewed, a rare collection that goes to the public library of his home town, Louisville, Ky.

The younger Prazier Hunt is likely a runner-up for the interviewing record held by Marcossen. Neither takes notes and each rushes to his typewriter immediately after the interview and while the impressions are fresh. For many years Edwin C. Hill and the late Frank Ward O'Malley were the best known New York interviewers. They took copious notes when they had pencils, which in true reportorial style was seldom, but were just as accurate without them.

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland
New York City

Train Child in Health Habits

Proper guidance and training of young children is essential to the development of proper health habits. Good health habits are the fundamentals of normal growth and development. Unless, early training in elimination is enforced by right practice, the child soon joins the legion of sufferers from chronic constipation.

It is true that some children suffer from failure of elimination because of other minor disorders. But as a rule the majority of young victims can trace this disorder to faulty habits and lack of training in early childhood.

Habits established during infancy and early childhood have an important bearing upon the health of the individual in later life. The child who has regular habits of eating, sleeping and elimination has a definite advantage over other less fortunate children.

A Bearing on Future Health

At the age of two years every child should be able to help himself. A good plan is to set aside a definite time each day for elimination. If this is done the habit of regularity will soon be established. The preferable time is after breakfast but another hour more suitable may be chosen.

The very young child who has trouble in elimination may be aided by the use of a glycerin suppository. This should be inserted just before the child visits the bathroom. The suppository should be well inserted and kept in place by pressing the buttocks together for two or three minutes. This will allow the suppository to become liable physician and have an ex22 dissolved and will stimulate movement.

Some young mothers keep the child in the bathroom for 20 to 30 minutes. This is too long and is not advised. Never keep the child sitting longer than ten minutes.

Failure of elimination may be due to some constitutional ailment or minor disorder. This can be determined by the doctor. Above all, refrain from the use of drastic cathartics and pills.

Good food habits, regularity in meals, sleep and rest, will protect the child from many chronic disorders of later life. Never overlook the necessity of good habit formation.

SENATE SCANS TAX RETURNS

Those Scrutinized Include
Hugh Johnson's, Bernard Baruch's

By NATHAN ROBERTSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—The income tax returns of Senator Hugh Johnson, of Pennsylvania, and others high in government World War council were under scrutiny, senate investigators of munitions said today as they sought to learn who had the returns of Bernard M. Baruch and others destroyed.

There were no indications that they had there were any irregularities, members of the committee nevertheless expressed determination to scan the documents of all connected with the war industry board, which mobilized resources under the direction of Chairman Nye (R. N. D.) served written request on the internal security bureau to destroy no more papers; he told his agents to find out why the returns were destroyed and who was responsible.

Baruch's 1917 Return Missing
Bureau offered no immediate explanation of why Baruch's 1917 return was saved while those for 1918 and 1919 were missing.

Baruch, recently named by President Roosevelt to head a group working way to make war profitless last night offered to supply committee with copies of the returns from his own files. In a statement in New York, he called the testimony "ridiculous and shameful."

Williams Held Stock
The committee heard testimony that Lieut. Col. William Williams of the ordnance department, whose tax returns were listed among those missing, held stock in the DuPont company and had signed contracts with the firm involving a $50,000,000. He also, the testimony said, was interested in United States Steel and other firms.

Letter was read in which Col. Williams submitted in 1918 to his superior in the army a list of the companies in which he was interested. "Would not that lead to his recommendation?" Chairman Nye asked. "T. Harris of the army," he said, "has my opinion." Harris said, "It is my opinion that they have relieved him from so far as these companies are concerned."

There was no indication that the returns of any of the men named by Nye were missing.

Hugh Johnson Named
Besides Guffey, Pennsylvania Democrat who defeated Senator Johnson, the former blue chip chief, and Legge, chairman of the farm board in the Hoover administration, others whose income tax returns were listed today as under scrutiny are:

Gene Meyer, former governor of the Federal Reserve board; George N. Peek, special adviser to President Roosevelt on foreign affairs; Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland; and Clarence Dillon, New York banker. All were members or officials of the war industry board.

Many Others On List
Others listed included: Harry Bingham, of Cleveland; H. H. Ingalls, Youngstown banker; Charles A. Otis, of Cleveland; and Leopold, New York Steel magnate.

MARTIN INSULL AWAITS VERDICT

Jury Weighs Embezzlement Charges Against Samuel's Brother

(By Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—A criminal court jury, with an eye on the calendar, deliberated today the state's embezzlement charges against Martin Insull.

An extraordinary session of Judge Cornelius J. Harrington's court, frankly intended to speed up a decision so the jurors might utilize the few remaining Christmas shopping days, brought them the case, last night at 12:50 a. m. The silver haired defendant, whose action in drawing $344,720 from Middlewest Utilities company treasury to bolster a sagging stock market account was branded "theft" by prosecutors, attorneys and attaches all were hopeful of a speedy verdict.

Jurors Weigh Evidence
Attendants said the jurors began their discussion as soon as they reached their room. But after three hours discussion they were locked up for the night.

Insull, waiting in the courtroom in the early hours of a snowy December morn., recalled that a federal court jury last month required only slightly more than two hours to acquit his brother and business preceptor, Samuel, and 17 co-defendants of mail order fraud in another transaction growing out of the collapse of the Insull utility empire.

Martin's, the third trial of the series instituted soon after the Insull power crumbled during the stress of depression difficulties, had consumed 17 days.

SEVEN DIE AS PLANE CRASHES

500 persons cheered "The Flying Hotel" when it returned to Amsterdam after winning the handicap race in the Melbourne derby.

Its pilots on that flight, K. D. Parmentier and J. J. Moll, were honored by Queen Wilhelmina. The plane was second in the derby.

The scene of the crash, midway between the coast of Palestine and Baghdad, is a desolate one. Pilots of the ship had hoped to reach Batavia in time to deliver Christmas mail and presents to colonists. They sought to make the flight in five days, establishing a record. The plane left Cairo a few hours before the crash.

BRIDGE CLUB MEETS TONIGHT

Contract Players, Novice and Expert, Battle Over Tables

Members of the Salem Contract Bridge club will meet again this evening at the Memorial building. A great deal of interest has been shown in the organization, which is open to the public, and which is expected to increase in membership as the season progresses.

Prizes will be awarded to high score winners.

KIBITZER SAYS

Perhaps the most interesting and most accurate test of bridge is a two pair duplicate replay match. A set of duplicate boards either 20, 24, or 32 are all dealt. Then one pair sit E & W the other pair sit N & S. Each board is bid separately and each bid is recorded on a white slip of paper. When final bid is determined, the declarer is recorded, also his contract then the person to the declarer's left records his original lead, the slip of paper folded up and placed in the board. This procedure is followed out with each board until they have all been bid and recorded.

The next move is to turn the boards the opposite direction, bid and play the hands. Meanwhile the bidding and contract and original lead plus the score made, are written on a different colored slip of paper, the paper folded up and placed in the different boards, until all have been bid and played.

These two operations usually take up a whole evening's play, so the boards are laid away for a night or two. Then the same pairs get together the boards are pointed to their original position, the slip of paper (the white one) taken out of the board.

One of the players reads the bidding, the contract and the lead, then the hand is played as bid several nights before. After the play is finished, you have a direct comparison of the bidding and scores of each board. Each board represents a match and of course the pair winning the most matches wins the set.

This bridge hand printed in a previous issue is known as the Mississippi Heart hand. Many wagers have been won and lost on it. At first glance one would swear that a grand slam could not be made but after careful study you find that no possible defense can stop it.

In the writer's opinion, one of the most common mistakes in bridge is made by declarer in attempting a so-called finesse, when in three out of four cases he is better off not to attempt it. By this I mean with open hand holding Qxx of trump and declarer holding Axxx of trump, so many players will get in the closed hand and lead the Queen to declarer's hand. Most certainly the finesse is obvious to the defense. The Queen is covered. This draws the Ace, leaving the opponents holding the Jack and ten against them. My thought on this holding would be to lead the Ace, then a small card up to the Queen-x in dummy. If this rule is followed I am sure declarer will be ahead in the long run.

This column will be glad to print any freak hands that might be filed with The News, and try to give a correct solution.

How many hearts can you make and bid?

Old Age Pensions Gain In November

COLUMBUS, Dec. 21.—Declaring that with the certification of 8,975 new pensions to the rolls in November, approvals showed a 30 per cent gain over October, M. L. Brown, chief of the division of aid for the aged, department of welfare said he feared an emergency appropriation of $700,000 to finance the pensions, might prove inadequate.

Six million dollars has been allocated from sales tax proceeds for the first half of the New Year, but Brown said he doubted if any of this would be available before February.

FERA AIRPORT JOB FORGOTTEN

Madison Township Project Now Seems Abandoned

LISBON, Dec. 21.—With a temporary injunction halting further work on the Rogers airport in Madison township and with the abandonment of transient camp No. 6 and with the removal Tuesday of all equipment essential to grading and further improvement of the airport field, besides the possibility of a $10,000 damage action being filed against the Village of Rogers because of the non-completion of the airport, indicated today that the Madison township airport proposal is a closed incident.

When work at the Madison township project was at its peak, 268 men were employed, transient laborers, and these men were paid $407 monthly. This basis continued for three months. The Gabel Co., contractors engaged to grade the large field had an average payroll of $24.60 per week per man.

The last Transients Moved
The few men remaining at the transient camp were today taken to similar camps at Chagrin Falls, Patterson Field, near Dayton, Kincaid Camp, near Chillicothe and at Chardon.

It has announced at the county FERA office that no further proposals would be offered the state from Columbiana county to continue work on the project.

Fire Rages Aboard Freighter Ontario

BOSTON, Dec. 21.—The mounting tons of water poured into the holds of the coastwise freighter Ontario as firemen fought to quench flames that raged uncontrolled through the ship threatened today to send the steamer to the bottom of Boston harbor.

The Ontario returned to port here about four a. m. her hatches, ventilators and ports belching smoke. Fire broke out last night when she was two miles off Sandwich, near the Massachusetts bay entrance to the Cape Cod canal, southbound with a general cargo for Baltimore and Norfolk.

GIRL WILL DIE FOR POISONING

French Widowed Mother Comes To Aid of Daughter

PARIS, Dec. 21.—The mother she is accused of having attempted to kill, came to the aid today of Violette Nozriere, 19-year-old girl who has been sentenced to the guillotine for poisoning her father.

A petition, pleading for mercy for the girl, was dispatched to President Albert Lebrun by Mme. Nozriere, who it was brought out, was also marked for death by the daughter.

The girl killed her father, authorities charge, to obtain an inheritance that she might continue a life of gaiety in the student quarter.

Girl In Death Cell

An appeal to the supreme court was rejected and Violette was sent back to the death cell.

Public opinion is divided as to whether President Lebrun should commute the sentence to life imprisonment, a custom of many years standing in France when the condemned is a woman.

Earlier in the trial Mme. Nozriere was one of her daughter's most bitter accusers. "She indignantly denied the girls charges that her father started her on a life of shame but extended forgiveness in a dramatic scene later."

Violette, who spent her nights in the swirl of activity in the Latin quarter, was convicted of having mixed a fatal dose of sleeping powders in her father's coffee. A similar dose, testimony indicated, was given the mother but she recovered.

Parker of Chicago, secretary of Kiwanis International, was guest speaker. This meeting was brought to Columbiana by the efforts of Lieutenant Governor Clark S. Marshall, of Leetonia.

H. D. Arnold, postmaster, has been appointed chairman of the ball for the President in observance of his birthday, Jan. 30.

Rev. Boyd C. Cabbage, pastor of the Presbyterian church, spoke at the Rotary club at Columbiana Monday evening on the subject "Ancient Archaeology."

Miss Carolyn Bickel, of Salem, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Lodge.

Today's Pattern

2002 A.A.
BLOUSES TO "PEP-UP" THE LIMITED WARDROBE
Patterns 1947 and 2002

Everyone who's ever tried to make clothes budget stretch until it cracks will agree that there is nothing like a couple of new well-tailored blouses to pep up the limited wardrobe. These sketched today, for instance! Pattern 1947, with its chic double-breasted effect, stitched belt and round collar, would be "just the thing" to top a trim skirt and make into a smart two-piece outfit. And at times when a softly feminine outfit is in order, pattern 2002, with its double rippling jabot and wing-like sleeve flares, would certainly fill the bill. If you prefer, the flares may be omitted. Both may be made with long or short sleeves. Taffeta, satin and crepe are favorite fabrics.

Pattern 1947 is available in sizes 2, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 takes 1 1/2 yards 36-inch fabric. Price 15c. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with each pattern. Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins or stamps (coins referred) for each Anne Adams pattern. Thirty cents (30c) for both. Write name, address and style number. Be sure to state size.

Send for your copy of the Anne Adams Winter Fashion Book! It is crowded with exclusive patterns for the child, the young girl and the patron. Price of book fifteen cents, at when ordered with an Anne Adams pattern it is only ten cents. Twenty-five cents for both. Address orders to Salem News Pattern Department, 243 West 17th St., New York City.

SO NEW—

so startlingly different is Coolerator from any refrigerator you have ever known, that it changes all your ideas of dependable, economical home refrigeration.

Ice cubes in five minutes! No mingling of food odors! No more need to cover dishes! No more drying out of foods! All in a refrigerator that costs only 1-2 to 1-3 of what you'd expect to pay—a refrigerator that 65,500 women already herald as the greatest new advance in the whole field of refrigeration.

Coolerator differs from all other refrigerators because of its patented air conditioning chamber, which washes and humidifies the air and passes it through the food chamber several times each minute. This moist air does not rob food of its own moisture and flavor, but does absorb and carry away food odors.

Coolerator uses ice for its refrigerant, but in a different way than it has ever been used before. For example: one icing lasts from 4 to 7 days. Another: ice melts flat—from bottom of cake. Maintains steady temperature at all times.

Tom Brown, Anita Louise Teamed In Tonight's Film; Grand Shows Western

ONE motion picture with a college background whose authenticity scarcely can be challenged, is "Bachelor Of Arts," which opens today at the State.

Its author is John Erskine, Columbia University's celebrated professor who has many noted books to his credit including, "The Private Life of Helen Of Troy," "Adam And Eve," "Galahad" and others. The story is considered the most honest and debunked film of college youth. Perhaps its greatest quality is its sense of humor— which of course comes directly from its author—a great writer of satire and humor.

Good Cast

Tom Brown and Anita Louise are seen in the main roles—the young campus sweethearts who meet the problems of an adult world in an adult way and not by shouting "rah-rah." There is an exceptionally fine supporting cast. Henry B. Walthall has an important and touching part and, as his life, Mae Marsh, contributes a beautiful performance—her first with Walthall since their success together twenty years ago in D. W. Griffith's "Birth Of A Nation." The campus is people by such engaging young people as pert Arline Judge who is cast as the college flirt; Frank Albertson, Frank Melton and John Arledge. No wonder life moves quickly at the university.

Stepin Fetchit

And then, to top the laughs there's Stepin Fetchit who appears as the slow moving bellhop in one of the fraternity houses. He's all decked out in a snow-white turtle-necked sweater.

There is no football game, no last minute "touchdown," none of the usual "rah rah" to this film. It's witty and it's funny but at the same time it's authentic. It presents the boys and girls of the present day and the problems they face in attempting to make a living, either while still in school or after graduation. Faced with mature and real problems they work them out in a human and believable manner. The picture is a timely one, fast paced, well directed and splendidly enacted.

Western At Grand

SATURDAY the Grand shows a real two-fisted western starring Tim McCoy. The thrills and action build up to the high spot that leaves nothing to be desired.

POLICE GUARD GETTLE AGAIN

Beverly Hills Capitalist, Kidnaped Last Spring, Gets Threat

(By Associated Press)
LOS ANGELES, Dec. 21.— Authorities disclosed today that William F. Gettle, Beverly Hills capitalist, kidnaped last spring and held for $60,000 ransom, has been under police guard since last Monday to prevent a possible attempt to abduct him again. The guard was placed about the millionaire home after he had received a crudely written and threatening note, officers said. The latter demanded money and said it was to be paid to a woman who was to be described in a second letter. The second letter has not been received.

Kidnapers Got Wife
Gettle was kidnaped last May 10. Five days later his kidnapers were arrested and the millionaire freed without payment of ransom. The three kidnapers, Roy Williams, Larry Kerrigan and James F. Kirk, were given life sentences, while two women associates, Loretta Woody and Mona Gallighan, were given federal sentences.

The threatening letter last Monday was the second Gettle has received since he was freed from the kidnapers.

SHERIFF DEFIES MOB THREATS

Officer Returns To Duty In Tennessee Town Under Guard

SHELBYVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 21.—The sheriff of Bedford county, defying threats of violence, went about his duties today under protection of a guard of 30 Tennessee militiamen in the aftermath of Wednesday's rioting which cost three lives.

The chief peace officer of the county, Sheriff T. E. Gant, returned to his home in the jail building late yesterday. He said he planned to remain "whether they (his enemies) will let us or not." His son, John E. Gant, a deputy sheriff, also returned.

Deputy Gant was a member of the party which rushed E. K. Harris, Negro, to Nashville Wednesday after the mob that was trying to lynch Harris halted his trial for assault of a young white girl.

Sheriff, Son Threatened The sheriff said both he and his son were threatened several times before they returned and "we have received a lot of threats since we got back."

Although saying "we hear an awful lot of talk as to possible further violence," Gant said it "looks like things have quieted down."

He said he thought the National Guard protection was adequate to repulse any attempt to reach him. Upon his return, a detail of 60 National Guardsmen, from the 600 stationed here, was assigned to the jail. At all times, 30 are on duty. Others are patrolling the public square.

Three Dead, Another Dying Gifford Freeman, 45, a machinist and resident of Petersburg, died late yesterday of abdominal wounds, received at the battle between the troops and the mob at the courthouse. Two men died Wednesday and the mob later burned the $150,000 court house.

The identity of one of the dead remained unestablished. He was pronounced dead at Bedford hospital Wednesday afternoon but before doctors could learn his name his body disappeared. The other man killed was Raleigh Edwards, a house painter.

Physicians said they held no hope for Floyd (Pat) Lawes, 28, a farmer shot through the back of the head.

Movie-Mad Max May Quit Ring

Disturbing rumors are circulating to the effect that His Pugilistic Highness, King Maximilian the Great Baer, has lost whatever fondness he may have had for the vulgar knuckle-knocking racket, and has completely succumbed to the lure of Hollywood.

By this I don't mean that Max is "going Hollywood"—he did that long ago—but rather that the great Baer has never gotten over the movie-madness from which he has suffered since his first—and only picture last year.

The daffy ruler of the heavy-weight dreams of rivaling Clark Gable, and it's a cinch that if he ever really clicks as a leading man in the flickers, he'll hang up his red fighting mittens for good.

Certainly it wouldn't help his movie ambitions if he was subjected to a facial glove massage by some enterprising heavyweight contender.

What makes the possibility of Max's retirement a real factor is the lack of any outstanding opponent for him among the contenders. The one and only big bad Baer will not fight for chicken feed, and neither Hamas nor Lasky would draw enough with Max to

Tips On Basketball

By Leon W. Schloss, Former Penn State Coach

By LEON W. SLOTT, International News Service Sports Writer.

This is the seventh article of a continuous series.

Here is your first practical demonstration of a favorite basketball tenet of mine, to wit, "Never let the other fellow know what you're going to do next."

Inasmuch as we've taken up the art of "throwing 'em in" during the past few articles, one might expect the next logical subject to be some phase of offensive floor-work, as passing, dribbling, etc.

Logical? Well, perhaps, but not the most important subject.

So just for a change of pace we're going to study for a while what probably truthfully can be called the simplest—BUT THE MOST IMPORTANT—single phase of the game. And its name is defense.

At this point I am bound to encounter a difference of opinion from many coaches, and perhaps many players. However, 15 years of play, coaching and officiating, has convinced me—long ago—that the team without an adequate defense, regardless of its offensive power, will never traverse the royal road to basketball glory.

My philosophy always has been that if your team has such a stonewall defense that the opposition can score only fifteen or twenty points, your team is going to win a vast majority of its games. What are we going to use for points, you ask? The points will come, friends, they'll come—from precise, if not sensational, offensive play which may be produced quite easily.

Here's the catch of the basketball defense I teach—it includes possession of the ball. In other words, my teams often are on the defense and at the same time have the ball in their possession. An explanation? Surely.

There are forty minutes of playing time in a basketball game. The ball is in the hands of the officials for five of those minutes. That leaves 35 minutes. If the ball is in possession of your team for 20 to 25 of those 35 minutes, how can your opponents garner enough points to surpass the 25 or 30 markers which you can not fail to register if common sense, coupled with efficient team play, is utilized?

It is at this point that defense and offense overlap and for fear of becoming abstruse, I'll let the matter rest there temporarily, while I proceed with suggestions to the individual player who would become a proficient defensive performer.

Individual guarding ability simplifies down simply to this:
 A good bit of endurance and

$800 FOOTBALL ATHLETES TOO MUCH FOR W.&J.

President Hutchison Says College Is Out Of Big Games

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 21—Elaborating on his decision that Washington and Jefferson college subsidizes no more athletes at a potential annual overhead of $800 each, President Ralph C. Hutchison has some figures to show what the once mighty grid squads cost his institution.

During the days when the presidents met the best there was in football, Dr. Hutchison said yesterday, the college gave its players free board and room, tuition and books.

On the basis of education costs each man was worth $800 a year, he said. There were usually 50 of the school's 500 students on the squad and that made the total $40,000.

Went to Rose Bowl

Wash-Jeff reached its heights in 1921 when it played California to a scoreless tie in the Rose Bowl. For more than a decade after it was rated with the best, however.

Two years ago when the youthful Dr. Hutchison took charge, the athletic board accepted his recommendation to cease subsidization of players.

Tuesday he made the formal announcement that W & J is stepping out of big time competition, saying: "It is impossible with a team drawn from a student body of 450 to play great universities unless that team is built up by the extensive subsidization of athletes."

(By Associated Press)

UNIVERSITY, Ala., Dec. 21—A train conductor today became quarterback for Alabama's Crimson Tide as the squad "fell in" for the long trek to the Pacific coast and the New Year's day Rose Bowl game.

A light signal drill this morning, and then Coach Frank Thomas, his assistants and the 35 members of the team start to Pasadena, where they are due Christmas eve.

In the meantime, the Tide will work out at San Antonio and will exercise at Tucson, Arizona.

Coach Thomas, dissatisfied with an offensive scrimmage against the freshmen yesterday, sent in the second team to face the regulars in a game which ended 0-6.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 21—Gordon "Babe" Lyon, tackle for the St. Louis Gunners, professional football, was divorced yesterday for non-support.

New York and Puerto Rico Lads Battling For Honor

MONTREAL, Dec. 21—Two hard-hitting little fellows, Lou Salica of New York and Yambo Andrades of Puerto Rico, have punched their way into the third round of an elimination tournament designed to find a worthy successor for Panama Al Brown, recently dethroned as world bantamweight champion by Ukase of the National Boxing association.

Salica, making his first start in the tournament, gained a ten round decision over Carlos (Baby) Quintana of Panama, last night, flooring his rival once in each of the first two rounds and flashing a sensational finish to clinch the verdict.

Andrades, likewise making his debut here, used a left hook to such advantage that he floored Frankie Martin of Montreal, Canadian 118-pound title-holder, six times in the course of a ten-round bout.

Yale's Victory Over Princeton Is Year's Biggest Sport Upset

Associated Press Poll Shows World Experienced Greater Athletic Shocks Than Ever Before

BY ALAN GOULD, Associated Press Sports Editor
NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—Judging from the reaction of the country's sporting experts, 1934 is the year of the big earthquake in athletic results.

There may be sharp differences of opinion as to just what constitutes an "upset" in sports, but there appears no doubt, on the basis of The Associated Press fourth annual poll, that the experts experienced more and bigger shocks this year than ever before. From Pasadena on New Year's day, when Columbia's Lions upset Stanford, until the Polo grounds in December, when the football Giants bowled over the Chicago Bears, it was the one big surprise after another in every major branch of athletic competition.

Biggest of all "upsets," apparently, was the football triumph of Yale's "Iron Men" over previously unbeaten and heavily favored Princeton, but the experts had a difficult time choosing between this stunning achievement and the collapse of the New York Giants in baseball or the consequent ruin of the St. Louis Cardinals to the year's major league heights.

Arriving at a decision on "points," based upon the listing of first, second and third choice of surprise packages, Yale's victory tops the list with 126 points, one more than the combined National league and world series conquests of the Cardinals, already proclaimed the year's outstanding team. The downfall of the Giants ranks third, with 84 points, although it appeared much more surprising, to those giving the matter first-hand attention, than the rise of the St. Louis club.

Football's next biggest upset, the overthrow of the Bears by the Giants for the national professional title, was closely pressed by Columbia's Rose Bowl victory. Michigan's gridiron collapse was viewed as more startling than the decline of Southern California's fortunes.

Zimmerman Leads Pasadena Match

(By Associated Press)

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 21.—Top heavy with names of golf's prominent people, the second half of the field of more than 200 entrants set out on the qualifying round of the Pasadena $4,000 open tournament today over the difficult Brookside park course.

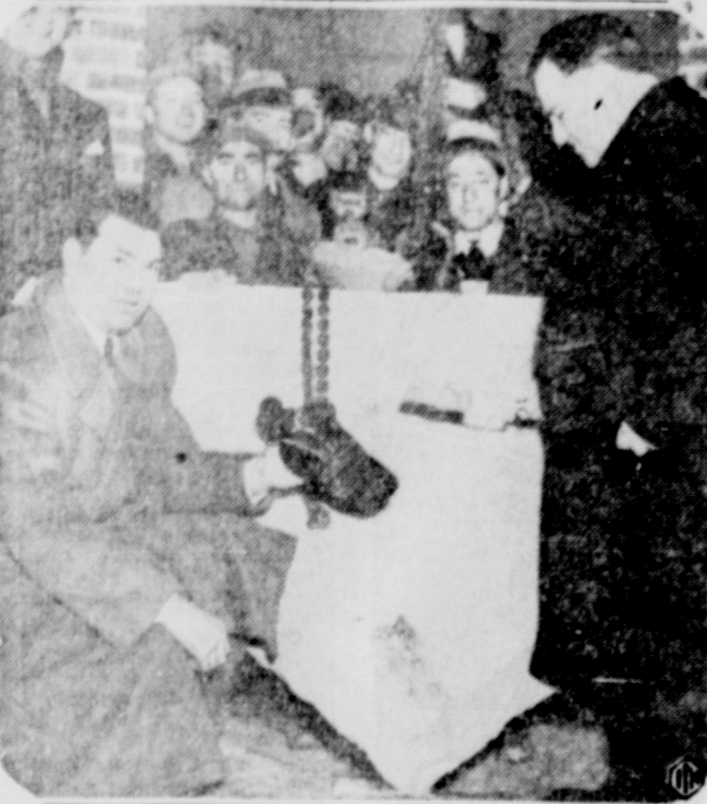

Their goal was a 69 posted yesterday by Emory Zimmerman of Portland, Ore., to lead the first division players. The blond northwesterner was one of four who cracked par yesterday as 69 qualified for the second round tomorrow with amazingly high cards of 79 or better. Three youngsters tied for second with sub-par figures—Dick Metz, Chicago, Ray Mangrum, Los Angeles and Harold McSpaden, Kansas City, Kas.

Gibson Hurt In Pro Grid Game

Butler, who finished a stroke behind Cruickshank and Leo Mallory of Noroton, Conn., another youngster, shot a 169 for third place. Butler won $350; Mallory $250. Ralph Stonehouse, the dependable Indianapolis pro, finished fourth at 270; and L. P. Schalk, of Hamilton, fifth at 271.

CAGERS BATTLE IN INTRAMURAL

High School A and B Leagues Play Thursday Night

The second night of High school intramural basketball was played Thursday night on the high school floor with Frederick Cope officiating in the absence of Coach Lewis Smith.

In the B league the Aces downed the Celtics 25 to 21 by virtue of Stewart's eight-point tally for the winners. The Chiselers gained an easy win over the Ramblers by score of 30 to 3. Straub set the pace for the Chiselers with 11 points.

In the A league frays, the Spartans gained an easy victory over the Dubs, 33 to 15. Liebhart, who played well, led the Spartans with 11 points to his credit. The Comets eked a 19 to 15 victory over the Zippers after a hard fought battle. Hammett and West each registered six markers while Wiggers starred for the Zippers with 10 points.

The starlight game of the night was that between the Pigeons and the Misfits, in which the Pigeons flew to a 10 to 8 win. The winning bucket was thrown in the last 10 seconds of the game.

The leagues will play again on Monday.

CHAPTER XXV

"I think you ought to remain in the boat until we sail," Harrow said.

"You do?"

"Absolutely. That prowler may have meant nothing. But — here's always the danger that our worst suspicions may not be so far wrong. For your own good you'd better count on moving aboard for a while. That is, if you don't mind."

Here was the problem arising again. "I'll think about it today," he said. "And thanks ever so much for your interest."

"No need to thank me, Kay. You should have a grudge against me for my having gotten you into this strange, how remote all this seems from that night when I met you in the auditorium."

"It is strange," she agreed. "But it's interesting, too, and exciting. I'm afraid I like excitement. I thought there never would be any in my life, but here it is, better even than in a movie."

"I have an idea there'll be a lot of excitement in your life, Kay," Harrow prophesied. "There can't help be."

Spike Winch appeared.

"Hello, Kay. Excuse me a minute, will you? See you, Earl?"

"Excuse me, Kay," Harrow joined Spike, who led him forward, holding his arm, talking confidentially.

When she was through with a few letters and Harrow and Spike had gone ashore, Kay sat puzzling over her situation. It was simple enough in general. Harrow had drawn her into this danger and probably she really wasn't safe at home until he had gone. Very well, but that wasn't all. Suppose she did come aboard for the few days the yacht remained in Daytona Beach? There was the Harrow-Spike situation to think of. Ida, in her smoothly insinuating way, had made that pretty clear to her last night. Kay might become only a trouble-maker, and she liked both the men too much for that.

Then there was always the suspicion that maybe this whole business was being engineered by Harrow to get her under his roof that he might insinuate himself into her affections and make of her one of his famous conquests. This seemed silly, of course. For one thing the method would have been complicated. Such a move might have been made with half the trouble and twice the effectiveness. For another thing, there was a ridiculous vanity, she thought, in supposing that Harrow would go to so much trouble merely for her. And she felt that Harrow was more straightforward; he had been very much so in most of his dealings with her. Yet silly as this idea seemed, it had to be considered; had to be remembered in thinking of accepting the man's hospitality.

Another consideration which seemed slight was that townspeople might start wagging tongues if she moved to the yacht. They were wagging them already in some quarters merely because she spent her days there. Gossip, though, bothered Kay not at all. The only way it could affect her would be through her mother. She would hate to have Mrs. Owen worrying about what people might be saying of her daughter.

Kay went home that noon, then rode over to town to see Harry, the roomer, who always treated her as if she were his niece. Harry was an accountant, a sober, stable sort of chap in whom her mother had great faith. She found him in.

"Did they get that fellow last night?" he asked.

"No. I hope I didn't spoil your nights' sleep, waking you up by telephone with a lot of mysterious instructions and all that nonsense."

"Not a bit of it, Kay. What was it all about anyway?"

Kay told him, then said, "Harry I want to ask your advice about something. Mother likes you and thinks you're pretty sensible."

"Shoot!"

"Mr. Harrow thinks I should not stay in the house while he's here. He's afraid somebody might make an attempt to get at him through me. She laughed rather foolishly, she was afraid. "You see, they might think I was the light of his life or something like that," she explained lightly. "Sounds silly, but it does seem to be a possibility."

"What does he suggest?"

"Well, he has two guards on the boat besides Mr. Winch and the crew, and he thinks I'd be safer there. I suppose, in a way, it's silly even to worry about it, but I don't know what I ought to do." Kay waited for him to reply. An expression from this wholesome, conservative man would be indicative of a good portion of public opinion. Of course, she said nothing about the several considerations involved.

Harry removed his glasses and laid them on his glass topped desk. He studied them a moment, looked up. "Doesn't it seem a bit drastic?" he said. "Can't the police help?"

She explained why they couldn't.

"Well, I'm sure your mother wouldn't want you to do it," he said. "It's really none of my business, but it seems to me that this Harrow has put you in a rather awkward situation."

"But it isn't his fault," Kay said.

"Maybe not, maybe not. Well, Kay, that's my idea, anyway. I'd merely be very careful and have as little as possible to do with Harrow beyond earning my salary. As you say, he's only going to be in town a few days more, anyway."

"Well, thank you, Harry."

She rose to go.

"What do you intend to do?" he asked.

"I don't know," she admitted. "It may not be," Harry said, replacing his glasses and looking at her gravely.

By dinner time Kay had made her decision. What prompted her she couldn't say. Curiosity, perhaps, a perverse spirit, or an interest in the man Harrow. This last she denied to herself the instant she thought of it. Anyway, she found Harrow and said:

"I've been thinking over what you suggested this morning, and probably it would be best if I came onto the yacht for the next few days."

"I'm glad you're so sensible," he replied. "Really, it's the safest course. I hate to sound like a calamity howler or a melodramatic, superstitious fog, but I do think it's the best thing to do. You'll be perfectly comfortable, you won't have the long trip every morning and evening and you'll be out of danger."

"I'll get my things and come back this evening."

"Do that. I'll have Kelly help you. He can take the car. Dinner will be waiting for you here."

"Oh, don't other about that."

"No bother at all. I'll get Kelly."

Kelly, a thick, red-faced man, quiet as a block of stone and evidently as hard, drove her across the river in the big car and waited while she packed a bag. Harry wasn't home, so she left him a note.

"Harry—I've decided Mr. Harrow was right, after all. At that, it doesn't seem to be anything to worry about. I'll stay on the boat until it sails. People don't need to know about it anyway. See you at your office tomorrow. Get in touch with Mr. Harrow if anybody comes prowling again—Kay."

After dinner she and Harrow sat on deck enjoying the cool breeze. Darkness had come down upon the roofs of the town, upon the river and now the lights of automobiles were beginning to move like fireflies in procession across the distant bridges to the north. Strangely enough, Kay felt peaceful, secure and absolutely at home.

Next day Harrow announced that he thought he was about ready to get away at any time. All he really had to wait for now, he explained, was Ida Campbell's return from Washington where she had flown to a party. The mere mention of Ida in connection with the continuation of Harrow's cruise began to upset Kay. She told herself that it was ridiculous that she should give it a thought, but that didn't prevent her from doing so. It was merely that she hated to see Ida so obviously casting a net at Harrow. At least that is what she told herself that morning. Looking out over the water, Kay realized that in a day or so this lovely river would be the emptiest, most desolate body of water in the world.

"Kay," Harrow said, that night, "I certainly wish you were coming along with us."

"I'd like nothing better—in a way," Kay admitted. "But I'm afraid it wouldn't be the thing to do."

"Well, as I've already told you, I'll not try to influence you one way or the other, but you certainly belong aboard this boat when it noses into that channel and heads south. Palm Beach, Miami, Key West, Havana—and on the way back Nassau. Nights like these, and the soft winds and warm ocean. And it'll be great to get away from all this bothersome business that's all this going on. I think that's going to quiet down for a while at least and certainly we'll be away from it once we put out of here. That will be one relief. I'll hate to leave you behind, though, Kay."

His hand moved quietly off the arm of his chair and settled upon her hand. "It's been grand," he said. "You're a great girl. And don't forget I'm really convinced that some of these days we'll be seeing your name in lights up there in New York. I only hope that when we do, it will be in one of my shows. Long way ahead, of course, but it's possible. If a few years ago anyone had told me I'd be sitting here tonight on this boat, taking it easy—well, comparatively so—I'd have laughed in his face. You never know, Kay."

"No, you never do," she admitted. Neither of them spoke for several minutes. But, Kay's mind was racing about this way, that way, and in circles. Suddenly without realizing it in advance she found herself saying:

"Earl, I do want to go. May I?"

Harrow looked at her, his lips grinning slightly, his eyes shrewd, amused. "Need you ask?"

Call for "New Deal" at G. O. P. Rally

Senator Borah, Chase Mellen, Jr., right, chairman of the New York County Republican committee, is pictured welcoming Senator William E. Borah, left, and Senator Gerald P. Nye, center, to the New York meeting of young Republicans which they addressed. The senators, strong opponents of the NRA, demanded a reformed Republican party with a progressive platform.

"I know you must think I'm an awful fool," she blurted, laughing nervously, "but I can't help it. I guess it's the way I do things."

"You've red hair," he said.

"I have at that."

Their eyes met and held a long time without wavering. First Harrow smiled again, then Kay Harrow's hand came forward. Kay took it and returned hard grip for hard grip.

"You're the right sort," he said.

"Thanks. And you're not so bad."

They heard a step behind them and turned to see Spike Winch.

"Sorry," he said, "sorry. Didn't mean to butt into any conversation." He turned to go, but Harrow called to him.

"Spike, we've another passenger."

"Yeah?" Spike said slowly, looking from Harrow to Kay, a slight smile beginning to show on his broad mouth.

"Kay's going to come along with us, after all. Now we'll be sure to pick up some fish. She's good medicine."

"Uh-huh," Spike swallowed and shifted his position. "Well, I'm glad you're coming, Kay."

"So am I, thanks, Kay."

"Will you excuse me?" Harrow said, "I have to make a call."

He hurried down the deck and walked lightly down the plank.

"Seems happy," Spike observed quietly.

"Earl?"

"Yeah," Spike said. He began to shake his head. "I don't know."

"What don't you know?"

"About your coming along. Not that I don't want to see you do it," he added quickly, "just that I don't know, that's all." He shrugged. "Maybe it'll work out. Maybe."

"What do you mean, Spike? Tell me."

"Nothing to tell you, Kay. Just talking. Go ahead—forget it. You know what you're doing. Don't pay any attention to me; I'm kind of screwy sometimes anyway."

Spike went ambly down the deck, hands in his pockets. Kay's eyes followed him, puzzled and concerned. Spike was a gloomy prophet, but Spike was also a shrewd man. What now?

When Harrow came back he suggested taking Kay over to the house for the rest of her things and to make her arrangements for sailing. "When we do leave it'll probably be in a hurry," he said, "and any hour at that. So you'd better be all ready in advance."

As he led her down the plank, Kelly and Wagner appeared from behind. Harrow looked back. "Never mind, boys," he said, "just a little quick trip and it's still early."

"Okay," said Kelly, or Wagner. Spike stood leaning against the rail. As Kay and Harrow got into the coupe he lifted a hand lazily, let it drop. Kay gave him a little wave. He turned and disappeared.

Sweets For Holiday Table

THE COLD weather brings with it a desire for sweets and so today's article will introduce some recipes that we hope will be useful to you. The holiday season always means more sweetmeats and desserts and even those who ordinarily never touch sweet things will nibble especially when it is a dainty like marshmallow topped apples. Wash sweet cooking apples, core and sprinkle with butter, sugar and cinnamon. Cover the bottom of the baking pan with miling water, add the apples and bake (covered) until tender. Place marshmallows on top of each apple and brown the toppings in the broiler. Very good, either hot or cold.

Butterscotch Pie

Butterscotch pie is always irresistible, but is even more so when made with butterscotch candy. Add one cup of milk and add a syrup made by cooking one cup of butterscotch patties and one-half cup of water to the soft ball stage. Cook with two tablespoons of cornstarch which has been blended with a small amount of cold water. Then add two slightly beaten egg yolks and a pinch of salt. Strain into a baked pie shell. As soon as it stops steaming, cover with a meringue made of two stiffly beaten egg whites and three tablespoons of brown sugar. Place pie in the oven and brown meringue for eight minutes.

And talking as we are, of butterscotch, reminds us that a waffle becomes the grandest dish ever when served with butterscotch sauce. The same goes for ice cream, pudding and cake. To make the sauce, place one cup of butterscotch patties (to be purchased at any confectionary store) in a flat dish and cover with one-half cup of water. They will dissolve in a few hours. If a thicker syrup is required, skim off the surface or boil down.

Money paid for Christmas Seals helps spread the knowledge that saves lives.

Today's Pattern

CHIC FOR THE HOUSE AND SLENDERIZING, TOO!

Pattern 2092

Clever housewives who are always on the lookout for the dress that's easy to slip into and out of, that's simple to launder and flattering to wear, could do no better than choose this smart coat frock with its crisp, contrasting collar and cuffs. There's nothing like long panels back and front, with not even a belt to break the line, to give an appearance of slender lines to the figure—and the notched lapels add a nice jaunty touch to the design. A pretty percale or broadcloth, either figured or not, would be a good choice for this frock—and if you prefer long sleeves, they are included in the pattern.

Pattern 2092 is available in sizes 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 takes 4 1/4 yards 36 inch fabric and 3/4 yard contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. Be sure to state size.

Send for your copy of the Anne Adams winter fashion book. Crowded with exclusive patterns for the child, the young girl and the matron. Price of book 15 cents but when ordered with an Anne Adams pattern it is only 10 cents. Twenty-five cents for both. Address orders to Salem News Pattern department, 243 West 17th St., New York City.

Latest Developments in R. R. Streamlining

How principles of streamlining are being applied to steam trains is shown in these photos of type of car designed for New Haven R. R. by Walter Darwin Teague, and locomotive developed by New York Central. Teague's car is many thousands of pounds lighter than previous equipment, though it provides more comforts for "day coach" passengers.
